

Corruption, A National Security Threat: Chief Justice Malaba

Honourable Chief Justice Luke Malaba has called upon all players mandated to deal with corruption in the country to up their game as the scourge has slowly become a “threat to national security”.

Hon Chief Justice Malaba said this while officially opening a week long Anti-Corruption Training workshop in the capital recently.

The training workshop, spearheaded by the Judicial Service Commission (JSC) and its partner International Commission of Justice (ICJ) is being conducted by visiting Honourable Justice Lawrence Gidudu, Head Anti-Corruption Division of the High Court of Uganda together with his counterpart Musa Modoi.

The all-encompassing training workshop saw Judicial Service Commission members undergoing a two day extensive training exercise, with the National Prosecuting Authority (NPA) and the Special Ant-Corruption Unit (SACU) going through the same rigorous training exercise on Wednesday while Zimbabwe Republic Police (ZRP) and The Zimbabwe Anti-Corruption Commission (Zacc) going through the same exercise on Thursday bringing a lid to the week-long training workshop.
